

BURZYNSKI

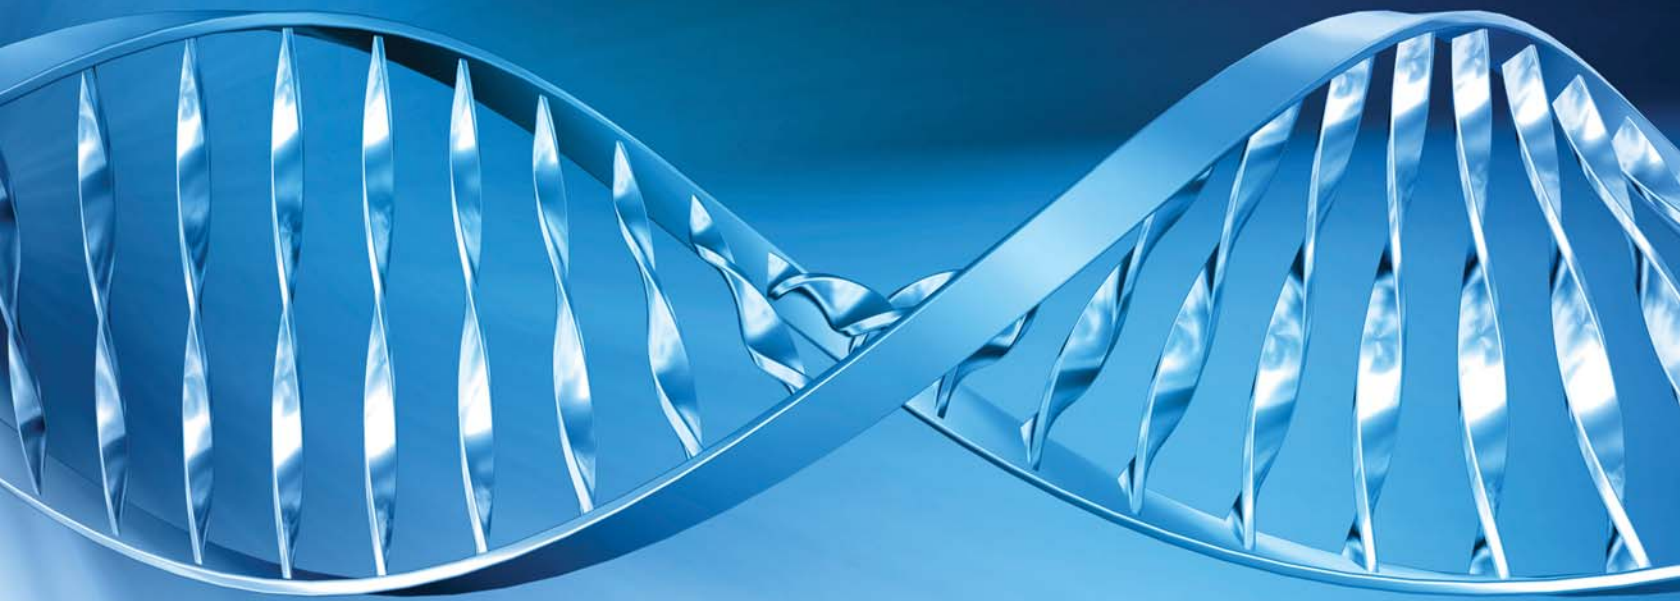

CANCER IS SERIOUS BUSINESS PART II

"After twenty-seven years of independently testing Antineoplastons—including randomized clinical trials, we found that Dr. Burzynski was right"

"It's obviously not anecdotal anymore."

Hideaki Tsuda, MD - 2013

Kurume University Hospital - Fukuoka Prefecture, Japan

"I can't imagine a world where other people will not have the privilege that I have had—the privilege to have their life saved by a new technology that can cure cancer—it's terrifying."

Laura Hymas - 2013

Glioblastoma Grade IV brain cancer patient, after experiencing a complete remission under Antineoplaston therapy.

In the compelling follow-up to the internationally award-winning documentary, Burzynski; Burzynski: Cancer is Serious Business, Part II explores the current status of a controversial cancer therapy called Antineoplastons and this experimental medicine's clinical testing sanctioned by the United States Food & Drug Administration. This documentary also features a modern story of the turbulent journeys of cancer patients being treated today—in FDA-sanctioned clinical trials using this experimental technology.

"[Burzynski: Part II] is a comprehensive and painstaking look at Burzynski's astonishing medical breakthrough..."

New Times - March 6, 2013, review from invitation-only screening in San Luis Obispo, CA

About: Burzynski Cancer Is Serious Business, Part II
Feature Documentary

Short Synopsis:

In the compelling follow-up to the internationally award-winning documentary, Burzynski; Burzynski: Cancer is Serious Business, Part II explores the current status of a controversial cancer therapy called Antineoplastons and this experimental medicine's clinical testing sanctioned by the United States Food & Drug Administration. This documentary also features a modern story of the turbulent journeys of cancer patients being treated today at the Burzynski Clinic in Houston, Texas.

Long Synopsis:

In the compelling follow-up to the internationally award-winning documentary, Burzynski, the Movie; Burzynski: Cancer is Serious Business, Part II explores the current status of Antineoplastons' clinical testing sanctioned by the United States Food & Drug Administration—and features a modern story of the struggling journeys of cancer patients being treated today at the Burzynski Clinic in Houston, Texas.

For most patients undergoing Burzynski's treatment, their advanced cancer itself runs secondary to the constant barrage of skepticism coming not only from their local oncologists, but also from friends and family who feel their loved ones are making suspect treatment decisions—even though mainstream oncology has already left many of them for dead.

As the story unfolds, you will observe a real-time change of hearts and minds from many of their doctors and families—by showcasing interviews with board-certified oncologists, surgeons and neurosurgeons, who witnessed their patients leave their care, soon to return in great health after opting for the Burzynski Clinic.

Since the mapping of various Cancer Genomes, Dr. Burzynski has pioneered an expansion of his therapy which he calls, "Personalized Gene-Targeted Cancer Therapy", where each patient's Genomic Cancer Atlas is mapped and a treatment regimen is personally tailored for each individual patient—vs. the conveyor belt, "one-size-fits-all" approach that current oncology adheres to.

Due to the slow-moving, bureaucratic obstacles enforced on Antineoplastons by America's FDA, this new expanded "personalized gene-targeted" direction has allowed more patients (who are denied access to Antineoplastons) to benefit from Burzynski's practice in ways never before thought possible. And yet, still with similar resistance and controversy endured by Burzynski's Antineoplaston therapy.

The film also takes you to Kurume University in Fukuoka, Japan—where independently designed studies of Antineoplastons have been underway for 27 years—without Dr. Burzynski's (the inventor's) involvement or supervision. Learn how this team of Japanese pathologists, oncologists and surgeons have studied these anti-cancer compounds using their own methodologies—resulting in the first ever independently-run randomized controlled clinical trials.

"After twenty-seven years of independently testing Antineoplastons—including randomized clinical trials, we found that Dr. Burzynski was right. It's obviously not anecdotal anymore." - Hideaki Tsuda, MD

You will be placed into the turbulent journey of how the industry utilizes its now usurped regulatory agency to both block Antineoplastons' Phase 3 clinical trial process—and orchestrate a group of "information hit men" to pollute all channels of public information in an effort to confuse the public over the truth behind Antineoplastons. This international group also engages in the intimidation and harassment of prospective and current terminal cancer patients under Dr. Burzynski's care.

However, most notable of all—are the earth-shattering events that occurred upon the final days of production of this film—you'll be left speechless, yet with so much to say, when you witness the story and shocking conclusion to Burzynski: Cancer Is Serious Business, Part II.

About the Production:

This documentary film is product of three years of relentless research and travel—from across the United States, England, and Japan.

After BURZYNSKI: CANCER IS SERIOUS BUSINESS (2010) received successful world-wide distribution and critical acclaim, director and producer Eric Merola set out to produce a sequel—serving as a more modern story—since the original documentary was more of a historical biographical journey of the inventor of Antineoplastons, and his struggles to survive the market’s efforts to both steal his innovation, and imprison him for life.

BURZYNSKI: CANCER IS SERIOUS BUSINESS: PART II (2013) serves as a modern story with a heavy focus on Burzynski’s cancer patients themselves, updating the status of Antineoplastons’ FDA clinical testing status, and how this scientist has expanded his cancer research overall.

Biography - Eric Merola (Writer, Director, Producer)

Eric Merola began his career as a motions graphics designer and animator for various TV & film clients including WE Network, Fuel TV and Speed Channel. He also worked on projects for A&E, Comedy Central and MoveOn as animation director for Flickerlab in New York City. And in 2007, while building an animated sequence for Michael Moore’s CAPITALISM: A LOVE STORY, Merola became aware of Stanislaw Burzynski and felt compelled to tell his story.

Spanning three years, Merola produced, wrote and directed his debut documentary, BURZYNSKI (2010). It attracted widespread distribution and numerous awards including Best Documentary 2011 on the Documentary Channel and 2 Audience Awards at the HumanDoc Festival in Warsaw 2011. It also received favorable reviews from The Los Angeles Times, The New York Times and Variety, and celebrity endorsements from Anthony Robbins, Dr Oz, Josh Duhamel, and Fabio Lanzoni.
